MANSION HOUSE,
Corner of Main and St. Clair Streets, Frankfort, Ky.
A. J. WEST, late of Cincinnati, and MRS. E. P. GRIMES, of the Olympian Springs, respectfully announce to their friends and the public generally, that they have taken this large and commodious establishment, and are prepared to entertain their guests in the best manner. The house is elegantly situated, being about equidistant from the Steamboat Landing and the Capitol grounds; is now undergoing a thorough refitting and repairing, in such a style as will make it rank among the very best Hotels in the Western Country.
The proprietors will endeavor, in all things, to promote the comfort and convenience of those who may honor them with a visit; and hope that their long experience in the business will enable them to merit a liberal share of public favor.
The house is well and suitably furnished, the rooms are large and comfortable; the family rooms in the private apartment are unsurpassed in neatness and comfort by any house in the State. Guests and their baggage are taken to, and from the Railroad depot and Steamboat Landing in coaches, free of charge. All the Stages necessarily pass by, or start from this house, daily.

THOMAS S. THEOBALD hereby informs the numerous patrons of this old and celebrated House, that he has taken this public generally, that having purchased the extensive Hotel buildings, furniture, grounds and stables, and become sole proprietor, the establishment will be kept up in a state of the utmost efficiency. No effort will be remitted to make the Weiser House one of the best Hotels in the Union, special attention and supervision being directed to every department connected with the accommodation, comfort and enjoyment of patrons. The Table, the Chambers, the Beds, the Bar, the Parlors, the Pleasure Grounds, will all be abundantly provided and arranged with the view to the utmost satisfaction of travellers, sojourners and permanent boarders, both in winter and summer. Strict attention will at all times be given to State, Steamboat and Railroad passengers, in facilities for their arrival and departure, having abundant advantages in this respect.
The eligibility of the Weiser House as a summer abode for Southern families, is submitted for their consideration. LIFE INSURANCE.
NATHAN'S (Mutual Life) Insurance Company, No. 55, Wall Street,--After mature deliberation, the Trustees have been continued, and the experience of old established companies fully warrant the conclusion, that the advantages of Life Insurance on the Mutual plan, may be extended and diffused with greater convenience to a large class of contributors, and with equal security to all the assured, by requiring no greater amount of the premium to be paid in cash than the company will require to meet its engagements with promptitude and fidelity.
It has accordingly been determined that in all cases where the annual premium shall amount to $30, and 60 per cent thereof shall have been paid in cash, an approved note may be given for the remaining 40 per cent, payable twelve months after date, bearing six per cent interest. The interest to be paid annually, but the principal not to be called in unless the exigencies of the company require it, giving sixty days notice, and then only by assessments pro rata to the extent that may be required to meet the engagements of the company.
The particular advantages offered by this company, are:
1. A guarantee capital.
2. An annual participation in the profits.
3. No individual responsibility beyond the amount of premium.
4. Those who insure for a less period than life, participate equally in the annual profits of the company.
The Nathan's company confines its business exclusively to Insurance on Lives, and all Insurance appertaining to Life.

THE DAILY COMMONWEALTH.

FRANKFORT,.....FRIDAY, JAN. 8, 1847.

KENTUCKY LEGISLATURE.

IN SENATE.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 7, 1847.

The Senate was opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. NORTON, of Episcopal Church.

Mr. McNARY, Senator elect from the counties of Ohio, Muhlenburg and Butler, appeared and took the oath of office, administered by H. Wingate, Esq.

Petitions were presented by the following Senators, viz: Messrs. James, Crenshaw, Slaughter, McNary and Bristow.

Mr. WALKER, from the Committee on Propositions and Grievances, reported a bill from H. R. for the benefit of Nancy Cox, changing her name to Nancy Davis; passed.

Also, a bill from H. R., for the benefit of Isabella Morton, changing her name to Isabella Russell; passed.

Also, a bill from H. R., to change the names of Wm. Coffield and Richard M. Wommack to Wm. and Richard M. Ford; passed.

Also, a bill from H. R., to change the name of James P. Conklin to that of J. P. Hagin; passed.

Also, a bill to authorize the Trustees of Parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in town of Elkton, to sell said Parsonage; passed.

Also, a bill from H. R., to change the name of Polixnar McDaniel to that of Polixnar Hall; passed.

Mr. J. SPEED SMITH, from the Committee on Internal Improvement, reported a bill from H. R., authorizing the use of surplus water power at dam No. 3, on Green river, on certain conditions; passed.

The SPEAKER laid before the Senate the annual Report of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, which was ordered to be printed, and referred to the Committee on the Sinking Fund.

On motion of Mr. EVANS, the following resolution was adopted, viz:

Resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary inquire into the expediency of passing a law authorizing Circuit Court Judges to change the names of persons desiring such change, and that they report by bill or otherwise.

Leave was given to bring in the following bills, viz:

Mr. TODD, a bill concerning conveyances of property made in trust; referred.

Mr. PEYTON, a bill to authorize the Board of Internal Improvement to compromise and settle with S. Stout; referred.

Mr. BRAMLETTE, a bill to incorporate Clinton County Seminary; referred.

Also, a bill to amend an act concerning the town of Albany; referred.

Mr. SWOPE, a bill for the benefit of Wm. Rowlett, of Owen county; referred.

Mr. EVANS, a bill to amend the election laws of this State; referred.

Mr. HAWKINS moved to take up the resolution appointing a day to go into the election of U. S. Senator, which motion was negatived, by a vote of 18 to 17.

Orders of the Day.

The Convention bill coming up as the special order of the day, the Senate resolved itself into committee of the whole, Mr. RICE in the chair, and entered upon the consideration of the said bill.

Mr. HARRIS offered a substitute for the original bill, the most important section of which is as follows, viz:

Sec. 7. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the Commissioners of Tax to open a column in their Commissioner's books, and enroll therein the name of each citizen entitled to vote for Representatives for the year 1847; and they shall be governed, in all cases in ascertaining who is entitled to vote, by the laws now in force to prevent illegal voting, and this column, written in a fair and legible hand, shall be transmitted with the Commissioner's books, to the 2d Auditor, who shall make out a copy thereof and deposit the same in the office of the Secretary for the time being, who shall transmit the same to the next Legislature as a list of those who are entitled to vote for Representatives, in order that the Legislature may have the means to ascertain whether a majority of the citizens of the State entitled to vote for Representatives have voted for a Convention.

Mr. PEYTON offered an amendment, providing for the appointment of Commissioners by the County Courts to take a census of all the legal voters in the State, commencing in July.

Mr. PEYTON, wished to provide some means, by which all who should be entitled to vote in August next, should be enumerated, and it was with this view, he proposed the amendment, believing that it would effect the object better than would the plan proposed in the substitute offered by the Senator from Floyd. Under the latter, all who arrive at the age of 21, all who have temporarily left the State, and all who remove into the county, in the interval between the time of the Commissioners taking in their lists and the August election, will be lost in the enumeration of the legal voters of the State.

Mr. HARRIS, objected to the amendment of the Senator from Breckinridge; that it involved an unnecessary expense, with which he was unwilling to burden the State. He asked no undue advantage for the friends of a convention. The plan proposed in his substitute, offered a fair test, by which the whole vote of the State could be ascertained. He deemed it entirely useless to be so particular in this matter. The popular vote on this question will not be of a character to require any very exact enumeration of the whole number of the legal voters of the State, in order to ascertain whether a majority of them have voted for a convention. The majority for a convention will be overwhelming, whenever the question is submitted to the people.

Mr. BUTLER, was satisfied that all the Senators were aiming at the same object, but differed in opinion as to the proper means by which the common purpose was to be secured. He was somewhat more advanced in years than the Senator from Floyd, and had lost much of that ardent feeling, with which in his younger days, he was wont to support any proposition that captivated his fancy. He attributed to this feeling the prophetic declaration of his friend from Floyd, that the convention measure would find in the country such a tremendous majority in its favor. He feared that the popular vote on the question might be closer than was imagined. At all events, it was the part of wisdom to provide against a result, which might involve consequences, the frightful detail of which, he would not detain the Senate to enumerate.

Mr. HELM, thought that greater care was manifested in the preparation of this bill, than in any convention bill he had ever seen. The Commissioner's books had been relied on heretofore, as furnishing the only data, from which to ascertain the number of legal voters in the State. The bill under consideration, imposed additional duties on the Commissioners of Tax. They are to ascertain, and report all who will be entitled to vote for representatives in 1847; not only to report, all who are entitled to vote at the time of taking in the lists, but to make all necessary inquiries to enable them to determine who will be legal voters in August next. The expense attending the plan proposed by the Senator from Breckinridge, made it objectionable. The county courts would in all probability, in almost every case, select the same individuals to perform this duty, who had served as Tax Commissioners, as by the time provided in the amendment proposed, for them to commence their labors, they would have finished their tax lists; and thus, an additional sum of 4 or 5000 dollars must be paid them for this service. He was anxious to have this business done fairly; was willing and desirous that those who were absent fighting the battles of their country, should have a voice in the matter. Many of those however who have left the State, have died, and many more will probably settle elsewhere and never return; these certainly should not be enumerated, so as to be considered against a convention.

Mr. PEYTON withdrew his amendment, and offered the following in lieu of it:

Insert after the word 1847, in the 7th section of the substitute—"That said Commissioners ascertain the number of persons absent in the service of this State or of the U. States, who are entitled to vote in the respective counties of this State, and report the same, in the same manner that persons who may be in the State are required to be reported."

Mr. BOYD was desirous, whatever might be his own views on the question, to satisfy the friends of a convention in the arrangement of this bill. He could not approve the amendment proposed by the Senator from Breckinridge. It would be improper for the Commissioners to include in their enumeration, the names of absent voters. During their absence, they could not vote, and should not, therefore, be reported as voters, to be counted against a Convention.

Mr. PEYTON—The Constitution does not contemplate a vote between those who vote for, and those who vote against a Convention, but merely provides, that a poll shall be opened for those who vote for a Convention, and declares that all others shall be counted against it. Two facts are to be ascertained by the next Legislature. 1st. The whole number of legal voters in the State; 2d. The proportion of this number who have voted for a Convention. The Legislature is left free to adopt the best mode for ascertaining the former. Who are entitled to vote! The argument of the Senator from Fleming amounts to this—a man may have a right to vote, but if not in a condition to exercise that right, then, he has no right. This would be indeed the mere mockery of right. Can it be said that the existence of a right depends upon the ability at any moment to exercise it? By no means. Those of our citizens who have volunteered in defence of their country, still retain their rights of citizenship, and any effort to disfranchise them, is an outrage, which should not be tolerated. The amendment does not provide for counting dead men's votes, but merely guards the rights of our fellow-citizens who are now periling their lives in the cause of their country. He was not wedded to his own proposition; his object was to perfect the bill, so far as he was able. If the next Legislature should believe that proper steps have not been taken to ascertain the true number of legal voters in the State, then the whole of this proceeding will be vain, and worse than vain.

Mr. BOYD—The Senator from Breckinridge misunderstood him in intimating that a poll must be opened both for, and against a Convention. He had not said so. He contended for the correctness of his former proposition. What constitutes the right to vote? Age, residence and personal presence. The last is as essential as either of the first two. A man can not vote by proxy. A volunteer in the Mexican army, cannot by power of attorney, however well authenticated, authorize A. B. to vote in his name for a Convention. There is no impropriety in excluding these soldiers from the enumeration. The law does not disfranchise them. They by their own voluntary act, have suspended the exercise of this right. He participated in the universal admiration felt for the bravery and patriotism of these citizen soldiers, who had left their families and friends, to encounter the perils and hardships of the campaign, but there were other rights to be guarded, as well as those of the soldiers. He would ask the honorable Senator, and others, were not the rights of the cattle drover, who might be absent from the State, to be protected equally with those of the soldier, or any others? He considered this a matter of importance, as it would to some extent affect the question of a majority for the Convention. These men cannot vote during their absence. Should they then be reported as voters, and be counted against a Convention, when they cannot exercise the right of voting?

Mr. HELM thought it would not be fair to count all of those who were absent, as against a Convention, without knowing how they would vote if they were at home. A fair inference would be, that there were the same proportion for and against a Convention among those who were absent, as among the voters at home. He believed that two-thirds of the volunteers were for a change in the Constitution. They were a band of gallant spirits, and whether Whigs or Democrats, they were all republicans. The bill itself goes farther than is necessary, and gives advantage to the anti-conventionists. He should vote against the amendment.

Mr. SPEAKER—It is not for the Senate to determine whether this, or that regulation, would operate as a hardship upon this, or that party, or would give any advantage to either. The object of inquiry should be, what does the constitution require? Under the constitution all legal voters in the State have a right to a voice in this question. Who then are legal voters? It is not necessary that a man should remain every hour of his existence in the State, in order to retain his rights of citizenship. The argument, that because a man cannot, or does not exercise a right, his right is forfeited, is extremely fallacious. If in the State, and not at the polls—the place designated by law for voting—you cannot vote, but you certainly have the right to vote. Does the fact then that a man is absent, fighting for his country's honor and his country's interests, disfranchise him? God forbid that such a doctrine should be established here. He had voted for a convention, —might do so again,—there are defects in the Constitution which he would gladly see corrected. One question out of the way, he would vote now for a convention. It was due to both parties, that the bill should be framed in accordance with the Constitution.

Mr. HARDIN, did not think the question who are legal voters a debatable question. The Constitution settles that matter. He desired to give the opponents of a convention every advantage in framing this bill, that when the question should come up for final settlement, there should be no danger of the frightful scenes portrayed by the Senator from Jefferson. He was in favor of including absent soldiers in the enumeration; justice as well as a regard to the Constitution require it. Has been opposed to a convention until within the past two years, but believes the time has come when the public good imperiously demands it.

Mr. CRENSHAW—All desire to frame a bill which shall be fair as between the parties, and at the same time be consistent with the requirements of the Constitution; would not commit himself decidedly upon one side or the other, but was favorably disposed to a convention. He was vehemently opposed to the doctrine that a temporary absence from the State, for any cause, deprived a man of a voice in this question. If such were the case, and one half of the citizens were called to the service of their country, a small minority of the whole people of the State might take advantage of their absence, and revolutionize the Government, such a thing was preposterous.

Mr. HELM—Under the bill, the commissioners are required to report all legal voters, and all who are but temporarily absent, are legal voters, and of course included in the bill. Through abundant caution however, and to have the soldiers expressly provided for in the bill, he would vote for the amendment.

The amendment of Mr. Peyton, as also an amendment proposed by Mr. Helm, providing for an oath to be administered to the commissioners were adopted and then the substitute proposed by Mr. Harris, for the original bill, as thus amended, was adopted.

The committee then rose, and reported the bill to the Senate.

On motion of Mr. Taylor, the amendment proposed by Mr. Peyton, and adopted in committee of the whole, was stricken out.

Mr. TAYLOR proposed to insert in lieu thereof, the following, viz:

"And the Commissioners, in taking said list, shall include in said list, the names of all such qualified voters who may be absent from the State at the time of taking the said list, either in the army or otherwise."

The yeas and nays being demanded upon this motion, resulted as follows, viz:

The question being upon the substitute of the committee in place of the original bill; it was adopted.

The bill was then ordered to be engrossed, and motion was made by Mr. STEVENSON to put it upon its final passage, when

Mr. REED arose and addressed the House in opposition to the bill.

He had no expectation that any thing which he would say would influence the House in its final decision. There was a disposition manifested by the friends of the bill, to press it on to its final consummation, which was entirely inconsistent with that grave solemnity, which should characterize the deliberations of this body. Confessing a deep reverence for the existing constitution, he did not like to see it hurried to its grave with such indecent haste. It was due to the country, that the defenders of the constitution, should have an opportunity of giving to the reasons for their adherence to it. It was due to those who were charged with hostility to the people, to give their reasons also, for their action. It was evident that any other question results in throwing out false inferences before the country. It was said that this was a question of simple privilege. Shall the people of Kentucky have the privilege of saying, whether they will go into a convention or not? There were considerations of a higher character involved.

The object of the parties who support this measure does not seem to be the same. One class considers it a question of privilege, and are willing to accord it. To deny it, they think, would be to deny the sovereignty of the people, from whom all laws proceed; who have the power to make and unmake constitutions at their pleasure. This view leads us into grand mistakes. Another sub-division of the same party, while they are opposed to altering the constitution, are not willing to withhold from the people the privilege of expressing their opinions upon it. While these false opinions and false inferences are going before the country, it is the duty of those who hold a different opinion to express it. Mr. R. said he was of the number of those who did not believe it sound policy to go into convention.—The constitution, (God bless it!) was good enough as it stood, without submitting it to the dangerous experiment of revision or alteration. While he acknowledged the capability of the people for self-government, he went against the main question—he went against the privilege. The question had not been distinctly before the people; they had not demanded a change; many of us upon this floor did not know the sentiments of our constituents upon the question. It would be singular to grant what had not been asked—to give the people a privilege of expressing their dissent to what they had not asked. If opposed to a convention, they did not wish an opportunity to say so. Mr. R. adverted to the history of the present constitution, and the one which preceded it. The original one, after it had been in operation for seven years was revised; was any thing gained by it? He challenged any one to show more than two lines of the present constitution, which were preferable to the old one; except in the mode of election of Senators and Governor, the new was no improvement on the old. He reviewed the various votes in the Legislature upon the convention question, and inferred therefrom the state and progress of public opinion demanding a convention.

The history of the U. S. Constitution was a good illustration of the desire for change. For the first few years after its adoption, it was violently assailed and was several times amended, but for a long series of years, since the people have become acquainted with and learned its value, it has not been altered.

We were called upon for a change of constitutions. It was an age of change; roads were exchanged for railways, boats for steamers. Every thing must be subjected to steam pressure. We are called upon for a change, but were not told what changes are desired. One says one thing, another says something else. There is no understanding, no common ground among the friends and advocates of change. Here a paragraph was quoted from the Convention organ, illustrating this position. In his social intercourse with some advocates of a Convention, he had gained some idea of some of the changes desired.

These were alluded to severally. The changes in the Judiciary might all be reached by legislation. The Speaker passed an eloquent eulogy upon the present system and its efficiency in administering justice between man and man.

It was desired by some of the friends of change to bring about a gradual emancipation of slaves. He deprecated any interference with this institution, and vindicated the people of Kentucky from the charge of being inferior in prosperity or happiness to the people of any neighboring State.

The designs of those who clamored for change was compared to the process of administering doses and prescriptions to a diseased and tottering patient.—Some were trying hydropathy, some for allopathy if any were to be tried he hoped it would be homoeopathy. Mr. R. concluded by urging upon all who were upon the floor who were opposed to the main question to vote against the bill.

The House then adjourned.

FRANKFORT.

FRIDAY.....JANUARY 8, 1847.

We noticed a few days since, the rumour that Mr. Polk desired to associate Mr. Crittenden with Col. Benton, in the commission to proceed to the seat of war, to negotiate a treaty of peace. In connexion with this subject, the Washington correspondent of the New York Courier and Enquirer says, "Overtures were made to Mr. Crittenden, through an authorized agent of the executive, to accept a seat in the commission, which as became his elevated character, he at once respectfully, but firmly declined. Under the circumstances of course, no whig will identify himself with the scheme. It was conceived by the Administration, and must be carried out by its friends."

All the accounts from Mexico concur in the fact that Santa Anna is the darling of the Mexican Army. Never were the Mexicans more united—never were they more content with their chieftain—How full of gratitude to Mr. Polk, must the Mexican heart be! Who besides James K. Polk, could have furnished them such a leader!

Mrs. BEATTIE, of Louisville is now at the Weisger House, No. 11, where the ladies will find an elegant assortment of bonnets, caps, head-dresses, &c., &c., which Mrs. B. furnishes, and the ladies are always true to their promises to sell low. See her advertisement in another column.

At a complimentary dinner at the Concert Hall in Cincinnati, on the evening of the 31st ult., given to Col. MITCHELL, and Adjutant ARMSTRONG, both of whom were severely wounded at Monterey, on the 21st of September, T. J. Gallagher, Esq., offered the following sentiment:

THE KENTUCKY VOLUNTEERS—They were not in the fight, because they could not get there.

Major GAMES, of the army, responded briefly to the sentiment, and when he took his seat,

THO. B. STEVENSON, Esq., (late of this place, now editor of the Cincinnati Atlas) was called upon to respond to this sentiment.

Mr. STEVENSON, said:

I appreciate, Mr. President, with a grateful sensibility no language can describe, the generous tribute to the brave volunteers from the noble State from which I have so lately come, to reside among your citizens; and the need of praise thus bestowed upon my Kentucky friends—for it was my good fortune to know a very large number of the officers and soldiers of the Kentucky regiments—endears the liberal people of the Queen City still more to my heart.

The entire Volunteer force from Kentucky had not the fortune to get into battle, but whenever they shall enjoy an opportunity, for which I know they ardently pant, to meet the foes of their country in the field, I shall be entirely contented to let their own deeds speak their own praise.

The sentiment to which I am required to respond has turned my thoughts upon a true representative of Kentucky chivalry, now embalmied in the regard of the whole nation; for by his late deeds and his glorious exit, he has shed additional lustre on the arms of his country. I refer to the late, lamented, Maj. BARBOUR. He was born in Kentucky, of a family of the highest respectability, the paternal and maternal lines being distinguished in the military service of the country. His father, Col. Philip Barbour, commanded a regiment of Kentucky Volunteers in the late war against Great Britain, and was in the glorious battle of the Thames. His mother was the daughter of Gen. Samuel Hopkins, an officer in the regular service during the Revolutionary war, and who led an expedition of Kentucky Militia against the Indians of the Northwest during the late War.

Major Barbour graduated at West Point, in 1834, and was commissioned a Lieutenant in the 3d Regiment of the U. S. Infantry. In 1840, his Regiment was ordered to Florida, and for meritorious services in that war, he was breveted a Captain.

He was in both the glorious actions on the Rio Grande, in which he so signally distinguished himself; Kentucky looked on him with just pride and exultation, as a true representative of his military character and renown. In the battle of Resaca de la Palma, with a small number of his brave soldiers, he met and decisively repelled a large body of Mexican Lancers, an exploit of extraordinary daring and brilliancy, and which contributed largely to the victory of the day; and it was for this signal feat that he was breveted a Major.

His brief but glorious career terminated on the 21st of September. In the bloody streets of Monterey, while his sword was flashing in fiery circles and his trumpet voice was cheering on his noble comrades, a ball from the enemy pierced his vitals and he fell instantly dead. Thus perished one of the bravest and truest spirits that ever went abroad; but his fame will survive even the storms of time. His memory respected by all his countrymen, is most dear to Kentuckians, and I am sure is revered by all this patriotic assemblage.

I beg leave, Mr. President, to propose:
The Memory of Philip Barbour—A true specimen of a soldier, patriot and gentleman.

The Governor of Virginia recently sent a Message to the Legislature that that renowned Commonwealth, which the Picayune says is "fourteen feet long, of a reasonable breadth, and would require two hours steady reading to glance at it."

"I ain't a-going to do anything else."—There are certain set phrases that, once under way, "take," as the saying is, and are "all the go." Just now, the expression above is the fashionable reply to almost anything that is asked.

Not long since a minister stepped into a house—the so papers say—and found the lady making a bustle. He asked her what she was making that bustle for! She said she intended to wear it to church next Sunday.

"You don't intend to wear that bustle to church?" asked the man of Israel.

"I don't intend to wear anything else," replied the fair one.

"Well," replied the preacher, "I should like to see you at church without any thing else on but that bustle!"

TERIBLE RUMOR.—It is rumored that the ladies are about adopting gun cotton, for "bustles." Several bachelors have become alarmed, and daily expect to be "blowed up." Shake a bustle, and a coal of fire, at a refractory husband, and he immediately "comes down." The "lords of creation" are done. Henceforth we commence a new era in the history of the world.

In consequence of the indisposition of a little daughter, I am compelled to return home, without finishing my report. I will thank all persons holding reports of Common Schools, to leave them at the 2d Auditor's Office. R. T. DILLARD, Jan. 6, 1847. Sup. Pub. Instruction.

Single copies of both the DAILY and WEEKLY COMMONWEALTH, neatly enveloped in strong wrappers, can be had at this office, the former at 3 cents, and the latter at 5 cents per copy.

WESTERN MILITARY INSTITUTE, GEORGETOWN, KY.

T. F. JOHNSON, Superintendent. WM. F. HOPKINS, Professor of Natural Science, &c. WM. T. MARTIN, Professor of Mathematics, &c. J. J. WYCHE, A. M., Professor of Languages. R. H. FORRESTER, Esq., Professor of Law. JAMES P. MASON, Graduate of the Virginia Military Institute—Preparatory Department. THOMAS J. SMITH, Graduate of Bethany College—Preparatory Department.

The design of this Institution is, to afford to the young men of the West and South, a more practical and varied course of instruction, than can be found in any Seminary of Learning west of the mountains. Military discipline, Military uniforms, will be enforced as far as desirable; the uniform to be neat and simple, so as to be at the same time serviceable and cheap.

In the Scientific and Mathematical Departments, will be taught Chemistry, with its application to Agriculture; Mineralogy, Geology, the principles of Civil Engineering, Architecture, and Navigation; Surveying, Drawing, &c.; together with the other branches usually taught in those departments of our Western Colleges. In the Department of Languages, will be taught Greek, Latin, French, German (by a native) and Spanish. In the Department of Law, will be taught the elements of Constitutional, International and Common Law; the object being to communicate to the Student such a knowledge of the Constitution and Laws of his country, as may be necessary to make him an intelligent citizen. A Parliamentary Institute will be conducted by the Professor, to qualify young men for the business of public and deliberative assemblies.

In the Military Department, special attention will be paid to Field Fortification, to the Infantry, Rifle and Artillery Drills; while, if circumstances shall justify it, opportunity will be afforded, to those who desire it, to receive instruction in the Cavalry Drill, the Duties of the Camp, &c., &c. A prominent object of the Institute, will be, to impart valuable instruction to those young men who seek admission into the National Military and Naval Schools, or directly into the Army; as well as those who have in view various civil pursuits.

The Superintendent desires to refer to his numerous Patrons and Pupils throughout the West and South, while he takes it upon himself to say a few words of the Professors individually, whom he now presents to the notice of the public. Professor HOPKINS was, for eight years, Professor of Natural Science at West Point; subsequently, President of the Norfolk Institute, Va., and recently elected Principal of the Kennesaw Institute, N. Y.

Professor MARTIN, after graduating at West Point, had valuable experience in drilling and preparing recruits for the Army, and served during the campaign of 1837 and '38 in the Florida War.
